CONCEPT NOTE

Greetings,

The JLU Centre for Constitutional Law and Human Rights at Jagran Lakecity University, Bhopal, is hosting the II JLUCCCLR Article Writing Competition 2025 on the theme "Tracing Constitutionalism in the Era of Global Governance and Sequencing Human Rights Issues across Horizons". This competition invites students pursuing 3 or 5-year law courses and Social Science students of varied related majors to engage deeply with pressing contemporary constitutional issues involving Urban Governance, Police and healthcare, The Intersection of Technology and Human Rights, Climate Change and the Rights of Climate Refugees, etc. Moreover, it seeks to address complex challenges in areas like religious freedoms, women's rights, reservations, privacy, legislative powers, and more.

The competition's rationale is rooted in the need for in-depth analysis and reflection on these contemporary constitutional dilemmas, emphasizing the importance of nuanced approaches to constitutional principles. It aims to foster critical and creative thinking, encouraging scholarly rigor and the promotion of rigorous legal scholarship. This competition serves as a call to action for legal scholars and thinkers to adapt constitutional values to the ever-changing Indian landscape, contributing to the evolution of Indian constitutional law.

Participants are invited to be part of this intellectual journey, exploring the diverse horizons of constitutional values in contemporary India and shaping the legal framework for the present and the future.
