Q91. Comprehension

Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions.

The Shriram Gas leak case pitted the Supreme Court against one of India's largest corporations. CJ Bhagwati presided over the Supreme Court bench and was deeply concerned for safety of citizens. He was anxious to improve plant safety, a task which the statutory agencies seemed incapable of performing. The Honourable Chief Justice saw in the Oleum case a way of influencing the far more important Bhopal gas leak case. The Shriram case has also raised some important questions concerning the true scope and ambit of Articles 21 and 32 of the Constitution. The case also dealt with Principles and Norms of determining the liability of large enterprises engaged in manufacturing and sale of hazardous products. It also decided the basis on which damage should be quantified and whether the corporation should be allowed to function from thickly populated areas and if they are allowed what measures should be taken for minimising hazards to workmen. This led the Parliament to enact law & articulate new standard of absolute liability in 1991.

Sub Question 91: The Judgement in Shriram Gas Leak case influenced the decision of:-

1. Shrimp case
2. Goel Ganga case
3. Bhopal Gas leak case
4. Clean Narmada case

Sub Question 92: As an effect of Shriram Gas Leak case, the Law enacted by Parliament in 1991 dealt with:-

1. Private liability

2. Storage of hazardous substances
3. Absolute liability
4. Safety of plants and animals

1. Scope of Arts. 21 and 32 of Constitution
2. Norms of determining liability of large corporation
3. Basis of quantifying damages
4. Measures of increasing profit of company

Sub Question No: 95: Statutory agencies seem incapable of performing which of the following task?

1. Safety of citizen
2. Plant safety
3. Safety of Community
4. Prevention of disaster

Q92. Comprehension:

Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions.

From the second half of the nineteenth century to the present, the Geneva Convention 1864,(revised in 1906, 1929, and 1949) and Hague Convention 1899 (revised in 1907) comprised one of the most extensive bodies of positive international law outlining constraints on state behavior. The Geneva and Hague Conventions are noteworthy not only for their content, but also for their widespread ratification. Accepting the Conventions was a prestigious symbol of membership in the exclusive "international society of civilized states," and most states ratified them sooner or later. The Conventions gave combatant victims of war-wounded soldiers and POWs-international rights to medical care and humane conditions of incarceration. The Hague Convention was built on a fundamental distinction between combatants and noncombatants, designed to ensure that Noncombatants did not become victims of war. Noncombatants were not considered legitimate military targets, and military occupation authorities were prohibited from exploiting civilian populations under their control.

Sub Question No 96: What do Hague Convention 1899 and Geneva Convention 1864 primarily outline?

1. Human conditions of incarceration
2. Constraints on State Behaviour
3. Rights of victims of war
4. Rights of wounded soldiers

Sub Question No: 97: What motivated the States to ratify the Geneva and Hague Conventions?

1. The Conventions being prestigious symbol of membership in the international society of civilized states
2. The Conventions being the most extensive body of positive international law
3. As the Conventions enlist constraints on state behaviour
4. As the Conventions prescribe international rights of medical care

Sub Question No: 98: Which International Instrument predominantly ensures that noncombatants did not become victims of war?

1. Positive international law
2. The Geneva Convention
3. The Hague Convention
4. International Humanitarian law

Sub Question No: 99: What makes Geneva Convention (1864) noteworthy?

1. It's content alone
2. It's widespread ratification alone
3. It's content and its wide spread ratification

4. The new international rights created by the Geneva Convention

Sub Question No 100: What was the fundamental distinction on which the Hague Convention was built?

1. Distinction between military occupation and civil population
2. Distinction between positive international law and laws of the war
3. Distinction between combatants and non-combatants
4. Distinction between military targets and military authorities
